Poem on Downieville Road Focuses Public Eye Upon Its Menace

Mrs. A. Merriam Conner's poem, entitled: "The Road of a Thousand Curves," published May 21 in the Nevada City Nugget, has helped immeasurably in calling the attention of the California press, state officials and engineers of the State Highway division to the perilous character of the Nevada City-Downieville highway. The San Francisco Chronicle, the San Francisco Examiner, the Sacramento Union and the Sacramento Bee have all devoted much space to this most hazardous primary road in California.

The following letters received by Mrs. Conner indicate the power of her pen to arouse interest in the dangers of this much traveled highway:

Grass Valley, California
June 14, 1934.

Mrs. Merriam A. Conner
Nevada City
California.

Dear Mrs. Conner:

Your poem on the Downieville Highway has been sent around to many of the State Officials and many of the newspapers, in Northern California. The attached letter from Mr. T. H. Dennis, Maintenance Engineer of the State Highway Department shows we aren't the only ones to appreciate it.

We wish you continued success in your work.

Sincerely,
Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce

Grass Valley, California

Dear Mr. Wolff:

My hearty thanks to you for the pleasure I derived in reading Mrs. Conner's poem describing the thrill of "A Trip to Downieville," which accompanied your letter of May 28.

The verve and rhythm of the poem is worthy of Kiplings' best effort, and as such will be thoroughly appreciated and understood by those who are familar with the improvements made on this route during the past years.

With kindest regards, I remain

Yours very truly,
C. H. PURCELL

WOMAN'S SCREAM PUTS BURGLAR TO FLIGHT

At about 3:30 Sunday morning a burglar broke into Dr. W. W. Reed's office on Broad street, entering through a window he broke on the east side of the house.

Mrs. Lary Gallagher, who owns the property and resides upstairs, heard the noise and started screaming. Mrs. Herbert Hallett called Night Watchman Will Jones and in a few moments he was joined by Herbert Hallett and Chief of Police G. Robson.

The burglar, who it is thought was after narcotics, was in the building only a few minutes and rushed out by the same way he entered.

CHAMBER ASKS IMPROVEMENT OF AUBURN ROAD

The Nevada City Airport was the main topic considered at the Chamber of Commerce meeting last Thursday night. Chairman R. J. Bennetts reported encouraging news from the authorities in San Francisco.

Resolutions were passed in regard to the Auburn-Grass Valley highway as follows:

WHEREAS, The State Highway between Nevada City and Auburn was built many years ago and little or no effort made at that time to eliminate dangerous curves, and

WHEREAS, The use of said highway has caused the edges thereof to crumble away, until it is now so narrow that passing another can is rendered hazardous, and

WHEREAS, The surface of said highway has become so uneven that riding thereon is rendered very uncomfortable and there is also an excessive amount of wear and tear upon all motor vehicle equipment used on said highway.

NOW, THEREFORE, Be is resolved that the State Highway Commission is respectfully urged to provide in their next budget sufficient funds to eliminate the dangerous curves upon said highway; secondly, to resurface and widen the same.

ANOTHER RISE IN PRICE OF GOLD IS FORECAST

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18—Increase in the price of gold is anticipated momentarily by the gold mining industry of California and other gold states declares the Mining and Industrial News, official publication of the Gold Mining Association of America and the Mining Association of California, in today's issue.

The official publication says:

"The recent fears that silver legislation may give the United States an opportunity to test a scheme of stabilizing gold prices, have been quieted by persistent rumors here that the administration plans to resume its gold buying policies in a new drive to raise commodity prices to the 1926 levels.

"The rumored return to the gold-price-fixing plans, first advanced by Professor George F. Warren and based upon the theory that prices are governed by the supply and value of gold, is attributed to the failure of 30 important basic commodities to show any substantial increase during the three months past, since the daily increase in the price of gold was abandoned by the U. S. Treasury. The only exception is wheat, and its new high is due to droughts."

Ultimately it is expected that the gold price will go to $41.34, according to the publication.

MINER PLEADS GUILTY TO RECKLESS DRIVING

James Dunnegan, an employe of the Bullion mine, near Grass Valley, this week pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving and was fined $150 by Justice of the Peace O. E. Winburn. $100 of the fine was suspended on Dunnegan's promise of good behavior.

Dunnegan was arrested early Sunday in the yard of the Columbus grammar school by Police Officer William Frasier after the man's car had struck an awning on Main street and later struck a parked automobile.

Order of E Clampus Vitus Welcomed In Annual Pilgrimage

The venerable Colfax-Auburn stage coach, drawn by a team of white mule wheelers and prancing bay leaders, at the cross roads just above Auburn Saturday afternoon, took aboard a gay party of E Clampus Vitus, members of Yerba Buena lodge, and amid the huzzas of Auburn folk creaked merrily into town and drew up with an old-time flourish before the Freeman hotel.

There were twenty-five members of the rejuvenated order of E Clampus Vitus, who came from San Francisco and Los Angeles to visit the shrines of the Argonauts in Placer, Nevada and El Dorado counties. They came by boat to San Francisco, there taking a Greyhound bus for the rest of the pilgrimage.

Jim Stuart, of Auburn, made the arrangements for welcoming the party. The sheriff of Placer county and the mayor of Auburn greeted the Clampers and mounting the box with the driver led the procession of Clampers, citizens and the public officials into Auburn.

Thirty-seven Clampers and neophytes sat down to dinner in the Freeman hotel. Among them were distributed abundant gustatory pleasures and a little volume, edited by Sam T. Farquhar, entitled: "The Enigmatical Book of Vitus."

Those who sat down to dinner were: Clarence L. Briggs, H. B. Carden, Samuel L. Farquhar, Harley M. Leete, Roger P. Dalton, Dr. J. B. Barr, Leon Whitsell, H. S. Furlong, W. H. Mellinger, W. E. Davies, Carl I. Wheat, Lawton R. Kennedy, James D. Stewart, Douglass S. Watson, Dr. Roscoe L. Clark, Lindley Bynum, Jos. M. Morris, Ken. Wilson, Wendell T. Robley, V. G. McCann, Gus Meese Jr., Jack Wolff, William T. Sitton, John H. Robinson, W. A. Reynolds, Orin Lowell, Lee L. Stopple, Earl Crabbe, Lou Eichler, William H. Culbert, Arthur W. Towne, Edgar Jessup, Claude V. Briggs, Halsey H. Dunning, Dr. W. F. Durfee, and Ed. B. Stanwood.

Following the dinner an intimate gift of appreciation was handed the Noble Grand Humbug, Douglass S. Watson. Officers for the ensuing years were elected.

"The Poor Blind Candidates" were then initiated in the big library of James Stewart. An Auburn lodge of E Clampus Vitus was launched. The walls of Mr. Stewart's library are piled from floor to ceiling with books, files of newspapers, and historical objects, pertaining to California, and particularly to the Mother Lode. It is a treasure house of Californiana. During the evening Stewart gave a racy description of many of the objects of historical interest, relics of the Donner Party, of ancient hostelries, of famous wagon trains, of prodigiously rich diggings, and of mining cities of which nothing remains except heaps of stones.

The Clampers yesterday visited the old camps of Placer county, Hangtown and Georgetown and the Marshall monument at Coloma. Prior to their departure a vote of thanks was tendered Stewart for his hospitality and his arrangements for their welcome.

Saturday afternoon the Clampers toured Nevada City and Grass Valley. They saw the home of Lola Montez in Grass Valley and viewed the ancient landmarks of Nevada City.

Last night they boarded the river boat at Sacramento and returned to their homes this morning.

YOUNG TO FIND MANY FRIENDS IN NEVADA CITY

Nevada county citizens are taking keen and friendly interest in the coming visit of former Governor C. C. Young to Nevada City and Grass Valley, on an informal tour of the Mother Lode and of Sierra and Nevada counties in the interests of his campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. William Durbrow, chairman of arrangments for a dinner—meeting to be staged in honor of Mr. Young Thursday evening, June 20, at the Bret Harte Inn, Grass Valley, has announced the receipt of several reservations for the informal affair; and requests that men and women desirous of attending make their registrations either at his office or direct with the Bret Harte Inn, quickly.

Former Governor Young will visit Nevada City from 4 to 4:30 p. m. Wednesday, and friends and those assisting in his campaign are to meet him at the Nugget office during his Nevada City stay.

Accompanied by chairman William Durbrow, of the Nevada county reception committee, Robert Alderman, secretary of the Woodland chamber of commerce, and other members of the party, Mr. Young will motor to Grass Valley to renew old acquaintances and meet new friends, before the evening dinner.

He is especially anxious to discuss all phases of mining, and ways and means of aiding the development of the mineral resources of this section, and is expected to give considerable attention to the industry in his speeches on this tour, as well as his informal talks and interviews.

Well remembered as the efficient Governor who left a surplus of thirty-one million dollars in the state treasury when he turned over the office of chief executive of the state four years ago, former Governor Young has been prevailed upon to enter as a candidate in the coming election for Governor, in the interests of restoring order out of the existing chaotic and bankrupt condition of the state's financial affairs and administrative system.

FRED BREESE, FISHING SEES BIG BLACK BEAR

While Mr. and Mrs. Fred Breese were returning from a fishing trip in the Bear Valley district last evening over the Tahoe-Ukiah highway a big black bear slowly galloped across the road about 100 yards ahead of them. It was about 19 miles out and somewhere in the neighborhood of the deer trail or pass through that section where so many deer have been seen and hit by autos of late.

TRUCK DRIVER, INJURED IN CRASH, SUCCUMBS

CEMENT WALLS OF POOL ARE 33 PCT. POURED

Y. C. Soda, contractor, is making rapid progress in building the municipal swimming pool.

Approximately one-third of the cement in the walls has been poured. It is well reinforced with steel rods. The steel reinforcement for all the walks have been set up and all is in readiness for the pouring, which obviously will be accomplished quickly with the huge mixing and pouring machine.

This pool is well on the road to completion by July 4th.

WATER RIGHTS IN DISPUTE

The case of Harry Ramsden vs. Lindley C. Morton a water rights dispute, is being heard in the Superior Court in Nevada City today. The water rights in question lie in the Birchville district.

Wanted---A History of This Military Relic

The committee of Native Sons and Daughters are about to install in the Memorial Square at corner of Broad and Union streets, the old cannon, a relic of our early military days and would like to have a history of the piece if possible. An article on the subject or information given to the committee or to this newspaper will be gratefully acknowledged and will assist in an authentic history for use in the annals of the Nevada City section which it has been the aim of the organizations to obtain.

Cannons played an important part in the early history of mining towns, evidently gauging the patriotism of the citizens by the amount of noise that was produced. Pistols and shot guns were used to a great degree but every self-respecting community felt that a cannon was necessary to its dignity and honor.

In research the writer has found the following items in early day papers to bear out this contention:

July 1859—On the 20th inst Senator Broderick was with us and witnessed the greatest political gathering in the history of Nevada City. The speakers were met at Grass Valley by a large number of friends and escorted to this city. In the procession were about 30 carriages and at least 75 horsemen, who were loudly cheered as they entered town preceded by the band. In Grass Valley a serious accident occurred. A cannon had been procured to fire a welcome to the party and four men engaged to handle it. After four or five shots, a cartridge was put in wrong and foremost. The men got into a dispute then commenced loading it again. Barney Parker and Con Murphy were ramming it home and standing in front of the gun when it exploded. W. B. Carvey was standing at the time with his thumb on the vent and was thrown up several feet and came down astride the gun. He was severly hurt and burned. Parker died and was buried Sunday. Broderick attending the funeral. Murphy will recover.

October 25, 1869—In Grass Valley two young men, Gaylord Compton and Thos. Whiting were terribly injured firing a cannon in honor of a Republican victory. Old man Compton, father of Gaylord, was tending the vent but escaped injury.

September, 1863—Nevada City celebrated the Battle of Vicksburg and other Union victories, a torchlight procession being the main feature. There were marching songs, John Browns Body being the most popular. Our band and the Grass Valley band with military and fire companies lit up the town in great style. The Grass Valley boys brought up a six pounder, got it into position then found it had been spiked by some peace loving soul.

Our own big gun belched forth however and by ten o'clock the boys got the spike out of the other gun and joined in the thunder. About 60 of our boys accompanied the Grass Valley boys home and made a night of it. The spiked cannon roared tremendously, glasses tinkled frequently, saloons were thrown open and our boys came home by morning light, a happy lot.

July 1864—The Gold Hill Nevada, citizens do not think their present cannon big enough to cope with the calibre of the victorious news of the times so have taken up a subscription to purchase a brass piece big enough and loud enough to speak in ringing tones whenever tidings of great joy shall flash across the land. It is suggested that we do likewise.

Editorial Note, June 18, 1934—The work of the Native Sons and Native Daughters in preserving the venerable relics of the Nevada City's historic past are not only much appreciated by those who live here, but are becoming yearly the object of pilgrimages of various patriotic orders of history students. It is the historic values which create interest among such notable visitors as those of the revived order of E Clampus Vitus, who came from Los Angeles and San Francisco Saturday, to visit the shrines of the Argonauts in this and other mining communities in Nevada, Placer and El Dorado counties.

TOBIASSEN TREATS BOY SCOUTS TO CAMP STEW

Carl J. Tobiassen cooked a camp stew for the Boy Scouts Thursday night—and did those Scouts go to it? Not only the Scouts but several members of the scout council, including Dr. Chapman, Joe O'Neil, Horace Curnow, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Addington, Buzz Chapman, Addison Janes, Bob Tucker, Chas. Jeffery and Miles Coughlan were there, and very hungry. There were about 35 Scouts present and they all agreed that Mr. Tobiassen "sure knows his stuff," when it comes to cooking camp stew.

LIQUOR BARS MUST BE OPEN TO PUBLIC VIEW

The City Council Friday evening passed an ordinance providing for the closing all liquor selling establishments between midnight and 6 o'clock in the morning, and declaring it unlawful to conduct bars behind closed doors. Either the doors must be open or windows must be provided, under the new ordinance, so that persons on the sidewalk may have an unobstructed view of the bar at all times. A penalty of $300 or three months in jail is provided for violations of the ordinance.

CONTRACTORS TO RUN TUNNEL IN YOUNG AMER.

Fred Yocum and five other men left Nevada City early this morning for the Young America mine at Sardine Lake above Sierra City. The men have taken a contract to drive the tunnel until they strike the main ledge and from present indications they will be employed for a few weeks.

The Young America was taken over by H. R. Plate and associates, who are operating the Spring Hill property north of Grass Valley, several weeks ago. The main tunnel has been cleaned out and sampled.

PRIZES AWARDED IN MT. ST. MARY'S CONTEST JUNE 23

The award of prizes to those who have aided the Sisters of Mercy of St. Mary's in paying off the debts of that institution will take place next Saturday evening at Lake Olympia. The prizes range in value from $5.00 to $125.00. There will be a musical entertainment from 8 o'clock until 9 p. m., after which there will be dancing.

Mount Saint Mary's Academy in Grass Valley, was founded in 1864, six years before the beloved Father Dalton found it necessary to provide a shelter for the orphans of the miners who, taken by death, left no adequate protection for their fatherless children.

For 70 years the Sisters of Mercy have conducted their school, giving the children the best in mental, moral and physical education, training them in good citizenship and making of them the leaders of tomorrow. No one, following the careers of the children trained by the Ssiters, can question the success of their teaching.

Today, after 70 years of service, the Sisters, through their own kindness and generosity, are in dire need of financial assistance. During the past three years the Sisters have been unable to meet their regular monthly obligations, due to the inability of a majority of their students to pay tuition. In order that the children might not suffer, the Sisters allowed them to continue to attend the school, free of charge, expecting that times would soon change for the better when the parents would be able to make the regular payments.

Of approximately 200 students now attending Mount Saint Mary's Academy, less than 50 per cent are paying tuition, but the expenses of the institution go on just the same.

WARRANTS ISSUED

Chief of Police Garfield Robson today issued warrants of arrest for Jack Williams and Gene Davis, charged with disturbing the peace Saturday night. Night Officer Bill Jones had much dififculty in separating the two combatants.

HOPE TO LEARN OLD SECRET

To study four columns which have stood for 2,000 years without showing a sign of decay or dust, a body of European steel manufacturers are visiting India. They hope to learn how people of those days produced stainless steel. The columns were erected by Asoka, the great Buddhist emperor, in four districts of his Indian empire. Each stands on a high rock and is inscribed with the laws of Asoka's reign. Through the centuries earthquakes have not shaken them and storms have not rusted them. The secret of their making is believed to rest with descendants of the makers, and the steel manufacturers hope to learn this.

Pure Natural Mineral Water May Help

MILLIONS FIND IT VERY BENEFICIAL

For over 2,000 years the great mineral waters of the World, given to us by Mother Nature, have proven themselves very beneficial in the treatment of "rheumatic" aches and pains, arthritis, sluggishness, certain stomach disorders and other chronic ailments.

It has been estimated that Americans alone have spent $100,000,000 a year in going to the mineral wells and health resorts of Europe. Over $1,000,000 of these foreign mineral waters are imported annually into this country to help suffering humanity.

But it isn't necessary to go to Europe to find fine natural mineral water. We have many marvelous mineral waters in our own country—many excellent health resorts to which you can go for the mineral water treatment for "rheumatic" aches and pains.

Most surprising of all, however, is the fact that today you can make a natural mineral water in your own home at a tremendous saving in expense. For Crazy Water Crystals bring you, in crystal form, healthful minerals taken from one of the world's fine mineral waters. Just the natural minerals. Nothing is added.

All you do is add Crazy Water Crystals to your drinking water, and you have a great mineral water that has helped millions to better health and greater happiness.

Johnson Averts Textile Strike and Tackles Steel Workers' Threat—Steps for Drouth Relief—Fletcher Made Republican Chairman.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© by Western Newspaper Union.

GENERAL JOHNSON, administrator of the NRA, evidently must be given credit for a skillful piece of work in negotiating the agreement which forestalled the threatened strike of some 400,000 workers in the cotton textile industry. The immediate peril was to the workers themselves, for the cotton mill owners, embarrassed by over-production, would be willing to shut down their plants for a considerable time. Of course, the New Deal would have suffered a black eye, so General Johnson tackled the problem energetically and persuaded Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, and George Sloan, head of the Cotton Textile institute, to accept a compromise, and the call for the strike was revoked.

M. F. Tighe

The employers are permitted to go ahead with their program of curtailing production 25 per cent, and the laborers have the promise of an NRA investigation into the matter of higher wages and other points of difference. The union also is assured of increased representation on the industrial relations board of the cotton textile code authority and on the NRA advisory board.

The next great labor trouble, the dispute between the steel masters and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, promised to be more difficult for General Johnson to handle, and it seemed that prompt action by President Roosevelt would be necessary to avert the threatened strike. The men demand the right of collective bargaining through the union agents. Michael F. Tighe, president of the Amalgamated, declared it was up to Mr. Roosevelt to provide "prompt and unqualified enforcement of the law" on this point. He said the government had failed the steel workers and "their patience is exhausted."

General Johnson offered a compromise in the form of a special labor relations board for the steel industry, similar to that which was created for the automotive industry in March. But the proposition was rejected by both the steel masters and the spokesmen for the union.

According to the American Iron and Steel institute, the strike threats are due to the activities of union leaders who seek government intervention "to maneuver themselves into positions of power and domination over the steel workers of the nation." In a formal statement, the institute asserted relations of steel companies and a great mass of their employees are "peaceful," and that the whole difficulty lies with the Amalgamated association.

The "closed shop" is the one point at issue, the statement says, and for the employers to "accede to such a request would be rank treachery."

ROUSED to action by the drouth, which is the worst the country has ever experienced, President Roosevelt telephoned from Groton, Conn., to the federal relief administration, directing that a special relief work program be put into operation immediately in the middle western states. On his return to Washington he called a council of war to expand his plans and hear proposals from various government officials. It was stated by Mr. Roosevelt that farmers should be given cash income from work and also employment on projects so that their immediate distress might be alleviated.

H. L. Hopkins

Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, at once allocated $6,500,000 to 13 states so that the work could start. The states receiving allotments are: Wisconsin, $2,100,000; Minnesota, $1,000,000; South Dakota, $1,050,000; Idaho, $250,000; Kansas, $200,000; Montana, $350,000; Nebraska, $276,000; New Mexico, $100,000; North Dakota, $500,000; Utah, $600,000; Wyoming, $150,000.

Work projects, Mr. Hopkins said, will be put speedily under way to employ the heads of farm families in need. The projects will include the development of additional water supply through digging wells and through impounding or diverting water from rivers and lakes.

Projects employing men and women in the canning of meat, fruits and vegetables also will be used to conserve food resources of the area and furnish cash income for the families. Road work, as well, will provide considerable emergency employment.

The picture presented to the conference was one of live stock emaciated for want of water and food, grasshoppers and chinch bugs doing untold damage in the wake of the heat and dryness, thousands of acres of planted grain lying ungerminated or blighted and hundreds of farm communities praying for rain.

Plans of live stock owners in the most seriously affected states to drive their cattle into Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin for feeding and grazing were forestalled by the action of the governors of those three states forbidding the carrying out of the scheme. In Minnesota Governor Olson mobilized the National Guard to patrol the borders and enforce the embargo.

HENRY P. FLETCHER of Pennsylvania has been handed the rather difficult job of managing the Republican party. The national committee at its session in Chicago elected him chairman to succeed Everett Sanders. This would seem to be a wise choice, for Mr. Fletcher is an able and energetic man, notable for his diplomacy and tact and also for ready wit. In 1898 he abandoned law practice to become one of Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders, and after the campaign in Cuba he transferred to the infantry and served through the Philippine insurrection. He entered the diplomatic service in 1902 and after valuable service in Cuba, China, Portugal and again in China, he was successively ambassador to Chile, Mexico, Belgium and Italy. For a time during the Harding administration he was undersecretary of state, and after his retirement from the embassy in Rome he was chairman of the federal tariff commission.

H. P. Fletcher

The national committee adopted a statement of principles for the party in the fall campaign which in temperate but firm language condemned the doings of the Democratic administration, without any personalities, and more specifically set forth what the Republican party thinks should be done to restore the nation to prosperity. Opening with the statement that "American institutions and American civilization are in greater danger today than at any time since the foundation of the Republic," the statement plunged immediately into discussion of the need for social legislation.

There was assurance of liberal treatment of these problems in this paragraph:

"Our nation is beset with problems of infinite complexity—the problems of recovery; of unemployment, with its unending tale of human suffering; of agriculture, with its lost markets and relatively low prices; of forever checking abuses and excesses that have become all too apparent, and thereafter the problems of a wider spread of prosperity, of relieving the hardships of unemployment and old age, and of avoiding these tragic depressions. These problems must be approached in a broad, liberal and progressive spirit, unhampered by dead formulas or too obstinately clinging to the past."

Solution of the problems, however, said the statement, should be "within the framework of American institutions in accordance with the spirit and principles of the founders of the Republic."

Further on the platform said: "We are opposed to revolutionary change without popular mandate—and all 'change by usurpation,' the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed.

"We believe that the present emergency laws vesting dictatorial powers in the President must never be permitted to become a permanent part of our governmental system."

During its session the committee raised more than enough money to pay all its debts.

SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR HAROLD ICKES journeyed to Chicago and testified in the disbarment proceedings brought by him against two Chicago lawyers, C. W. Larsen and J. M. Malmin, the latter once a federal judge of the Virgin Islands. Mr. Ickes asserted the defendants had tried to blackmail him in order to obtain for Malmin the position of governor of the Virgin islands and a federal post for Larsen. He said their "conspiracy" was based on "trumped-up charges" growing out of a Probate court case he handled as an attorney some years ago.

The secretary's charges were later flatly denied by the defendants. The case was being heard by the grievance committee of the Chicago Bar association.

CARRYING forward the program of arbitrary federal acreage control which began with passage of the Bankhead cotton bill, the house voted, 206 to 144, for passage of the so-called Kerr tobacco bill vesting the AAA with statutory power to force compliance with its adjustment program.

The measure was sent to the senate over protests of Republicans who denounced the plan as just another step toward regimentation of farming.

The house also completed legislative action on the reciprocal tariff bill and it was sent to the President for his signature.

GREAT BRITAIN formally notified the United States that it would not pay anything on the war debt installment due June 15; that it would make no more payments until the United States consents to a downward revision of the debt, and that any discussion of revision at this time would be useless. All of which means plain default. The British note was sent in response to a blunt notification from President Roosevelt as to the sums due. It was evident, from foreign dispatches, that the other debtor nations, except Finland, would follow the course adopted by the British.

In his war debt message to congress the President said this country expected the debtor nations to pay unless satisfactory excuses could be offered, and he called attention to the vast sums those nations are expending on armaments. His plain language was not at all pleasing to the nations that owe us nearly twelve and one-half billion dollars.

THERE was rejoicing in Belgium when it was announced that a son had been born to the new king and queen, Leopold and Astrid. Mother and child were reported to be doing well. The monarchs, who were married in 1926, have two other children, Josephine Charlotte, six, and Baudoin, three, heir apparent to the throne.

MUCH interesting information was given the special house committee that is investigating "un-American" activities in the United States, these being especially the activities of the Nazis. Facts and figures were presented showing officials of the German government had spent money for the dissemination of pro-German information in this country, the German ambassador, Dr. Hans Luther, and the German consul general in New York, Dr. Otto Kiep, both figuring in the testimony.

Dr. Hans Luther

Doctor Kiep was said to have paid $4,000 to a New York city publicity and business promotion firm to "obtain publicity in this country" of anti-Semitic statements. He was said, also, to have contributed, unofficially and in behalf of a third person, $300 in $50 bills for the publication of a pro-German pamphlet. Doctor Luther was described as the financial backer and sponsor of the pamphlet.

Under examination, Carl Dickey, partner in the New York firm of Carl Byoir and Associates, said his firm has a contract with the German tourist information office, receiving $6,000 a month "giving advice, counsel, and getting together material for travel information."

About twice a month, too, he testified, a sheet titled "German-American Economic Bulletin" is prepared and mailed to a "list of about 3,000 newspapers and some few business institutions."

One witness, Rev. Francis Gross of Perth Amboy, N. J., linked Ambassador Luther with alleged pro-German propaganda in a letter which he read to the committee. Father Gross, a retired Catholic priest, told how he had published a pamphlet entitled, "Justice to Hungary, Germany and Austria."

Later the committee heard a story of the nation-wide distribution of Nazi "propaganda"—some of it allegedly brought into the United States without customs inspection. Evidence was presented to show that German consuls had encouraged organization of pro-German clubs to which the "propaganda" was sent.

Representatives of the State, Post Office and Labor departments were interested listeners to the testimony produced, and there were hints of later deportation proceedings.

LOUIS BARTHOU, foreign minister of France, appears as the dominating figure in the negotiations that may dispel the war clouds hanging over Europe. The most important thing he already has accomplished is the engineering of an accord between France and Germany on conditions for the Saar plebiscite and setting the date for that vote on January 13, 1935. The agreement gives assurance that France, under the pretext of preserving order, will not use force to prevent the return of the Saar basin to Germany. It also means that the Germans now have everything to lose and nothing to gain from a putsch in the Saar, so the possibility of a clash in the near future is virtually eliminated. Of special importance is a clause that amounts to recognition of the rights of Jewish and anti-Nazi minorities in the Saar.

Louis Barthou

In the disarmament conference in Geneva M. Barthou has been equally forceful though not so peaceful in his doings. He has stood out firmly against the German demands for arms equality and has greatly angered Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary. In connection with Counsellor Rosenberg of the Soviet embassy in Paris, Barthou has been forming what is called an eastern Locarno pact to be signed by Russia, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, with France as its moral guarantor. This would be rather a shock to Germany and Poland, and the Franco-Russian bloc thus formed would force Great Britain into the background in matters concerning continental Europe. To block this scheme the British would be glad to have the arms conference agree on a minimum program and then adjourn.

"I did, sweetheart. Who'd shoot for you if I wouldn't?"

"Good clean shooting," he mumbled. "but too low. Did you get Babson?"

"I tried and they wouldn't let me. But I smashed Henry Rookby's fool head, dearest. He organized the ruckus at Babson's bidding, but if he lives after the two raps I gave him with the barrel he'll think twice before tackling another such job."

Nate Tichenor smiled a terrible smile. "We backfired on the little cuss, didn't we, love?" He placed an oily finger on her adorable nose and pressed it gently upward. "You'll do. You're a man's woman. I'm going over to the curb now and sit down before I fall down. If anybody takes me from behind shoot him—and shoot high and for the middle this time. I'm all out of patience. Look after old Rube."

Rube needed looking after, indeed. He was unconscious and a three-inch slit on the top of his bald head told the story. Also he had received his share of punches and kicks before Lorry Kershaw's bullets had dropped his assailants on top of him. The two doctors carried him over to the little grassy strip that ran parallel with the sidewalk and laid him out thereon, then turned to look after Lorry's victims. As they sat up, Joe Brainerd photographed them. When that was done he wrote the names of the fallen on a fragment of copy paper and, in his mind, began arranging the lead for this, his biggest news story.

"Get a truck out of that garage, Joe," Doc Donaldson ordered, "and we'll haul our trade over onto the grass under the shade trees in the plaza. I've used worse dressing stations. Every mother's son of them got it through the foreleg and some of the said legs are busted. 'I only wing-tipped them,' says she—the little vixen."

"You've got to grant her the great gift of charity, Doc. And tremendous forbearance."

"Rats. She was saving them for the hangman. Hello, her hired man is beginning to take an interest in things."

Mr. Tenney's little round baleful eyes had, indeed, commenced to flicker. Lorry bent over him and raised his burly head to her shoulder. "How about you, old-timer?" she crooned.

"Shot all to pieces but not fatally," Mr. Tenney murmured slowly. "Where was you, boss, when the shootin' started? I figgered you to guard my rear."

"I guarded it, never fear, Rube. I did all the shooting."

"—!" Mr. Tenney murmured. "Sorry. Spoke out o' my turn, I reckon. I'll be up in a minute; I'll make a hand yet."

A small boy came running down the boulevard as if pursued by a demon. "There's some fellers over to the office of the Register smashin' things up," he screeched.

Lorry dropped Rube Tenney as if his big body was scorching her and ran for the office of the Register a block away.

As she came panting to the front door she saw a dozen men inside, with axes. They had smashed the editorial desk and the counter in the business office, pied the type for the next issue of the Register, upset the fonts of type and smashed them and were busy wrecking the linotype when the girl's voice reached them above the clang of axes on metal.

"Put 'em up!"

They whirled, facing her, and before the menace of her gun their hands went skyward. Thus she held them until Brainerd arrived with his camera.

"Mug 'em, Brother Brainerd," she commanded. "Steady, boys. Not a move out of anybody. I'll put a bullet through the hand of the man that spoils this picture. This is a time exposure, I believe, because the inside light isn't so good."

Joe Brainerd took three photographs of the vandals in his wrecked print shop and turned to the girl. "Where do we go from here?" he demanded humorously.

"To Bill Rooney's calaboose. All right, men. Come out, one at a time, in single file and wend your way to the lockup."

They wended it. Bill Rooney was in his little jail office, thinking things over and gazing dolorously at a hole in a forty-dollar hat, when men began filing silently in on him. "What's this?" he exclaimed.

Lorry's gun covered him from the doorway. "Take his gun, Mr. Brainerd. Take his keys, too. No nonsense, Mr Rooney, or you'll dance to my music again."

Brainerd secured the deputy sheriff's gun and keys, unlocked the two cells and closed them again as the wreckers of the Register filed disconsolately in. Then Lorry ordered Mr. Rooney to go home to his family, and Joe Brainerd locked the jail.

"The remainder of this party is yours, Mr. Brainerd," Lorry then announced. "I've got my boys to look after now."

"Thanks a lot, Miss Ker[illegible]."

"Not at all. No trouble to show goods," she retorted merrily. "If I were you I'd see that old idiot, Anson Towle, and swear out warrants enough for these twelve lunatics to keep them in jail till Christmas. I'd scare Towle if I were you. Threaten him with a mysterious fate so he'll make their bail the limit."

"Babson will bail them out, of course."

"I suppose so, but he'll not like it. The action will tie him to his gang."

CHAPTER XI

The succeeding week Nate Tichenor spent in a hospital at Gold Run whither Doctor Donaldson had ordered him for observation as to possible internal injuries. When at last Nate came to the Circle K ranch again, Lorry saw that, outwardly at least, he appeared to be normal.

"Doc thought my backbone had been tramped out of alignment," he announced, as he kissed her, "but it was only a couple of ribs sprung loose from my spine. Doc warned me not to move around, but I couldn't stay away. Outlaw that I am, I couldn't neglect you for another week."

"I wasn't ready to be a clinging vine; I'm accustomed to man's work—and if you're worth having Mr. Tichenor, you're worth fighting for. I enjoyed it."

"I'm almost afraid to marry you now," he teased. "You'd be a tough wife to handle in a family row. Have you been arrested yet?"

"No, dear. Joe Brainerd appears to have smoothed over the aftermath of that ruckus. He traded with Babson. Babson loaned him the new plant of the Forlorn Valley Citizen and then had a talk with the men we jailed. Babson levied an assessment to pay for the damages to Brainerd's plant, and Joe absented himself at the preliminary hearing of the case, so Anson Towle waited five minutes for Joe and his counsel to appear and then turned the men loose for lack of evidence. The men I winged are all going to get well, although they'll be on crutches for a month or two; I think they are glad to let the matter drop. We've all had enough undesirable advertising throughout the state."

"But I Am Curious to Know How You Accumulated All the Money You Appear to Have."

"As for undesirable advertising, you and I haven't had any of it. We're heroes."

"Oh, do tell me, Nate. I've been afraid to read the papers."

"When a mob sacks a newspaper plant the entire fourth estate regards the act as a direct blow at the freedom of the press, and instantly the fight is no longer a private one. The Gold Run Nugget has burned Forlorn Valley to a crisp and so have all the other county newspapers. The Forlorn Valleyites have been called thugs, murderers, bad citizens, rioters, bullies, and cowards. I am advertised as a peaceable, well-meaning citizen and a distinguished ex-soldier of whom the county is proud. I sought to do Forlorn Valley a signal service and was mobbed and brutally beaten and bruised in return. All of the papers have cried out upon the senseless brutality of visiting upon a blameless young man the sins of his forebears—and they have done as much for you. In fact, they've made a heroine of you. You are commended for your great charity in 'wing-tipping' my assailants instead of killing them. You have a nickname. You're Wing-TipLorry Kershaw now."

She turned to him suddenly. "But I am curious to know how you accumulated all the money you appear to have. For you do look like cash money, Nate."

"Well, the fact that I have a few dollars doesn't imply that I'm a financier," he protested. "The Hensleys had great veneration for cash but I'm only half Hensley. My father was a paleontologist. He came up into these hills one summer to hunt for fossils. Nothing would do but he must be our guest and have a horse to ride into the hills and a man to protect him from the Ker laws.

"My mother was twenty-four years old at the time and already beginning to be regarded as a fossil, so father added her to his collection and stayed on in Eden Valley and wrote some books nobody ever read, and resolutely refused to learn the cow business. He did manage to put a little bit of culture and uplift into the Hensleys. I made up my mind to stay out of Eden Valley and forget cows as a first aid to making a million dollars.

"When my mother and aunts died I was the sole heir to the Bar H Land and Cattle company, and the corporation was in excellent shape. There was about two hundred thousand dollars in the bank and no debts; there were twelve thousand head of cattle and the ranch was unencumbered. I decided to sell the cattle and lease the ranch. Rube Tenney, who was in command of the ranch, classed the cattle, so I knew what I had and what they were worth. I wrote my attorney to see your father and try to make a trade. It seemed the fair thing to do to let him have first chance. He'd always wanted all of Eden Valley. So he bought all the cattle and leased the Bar H ranch for thirty thousand dollars a year, for five years, with an option to buy the ranch at any time prior to the expiration of the lease and on very easy terms.

"The result was that early in 1920 I found myself foot-loose and with about a million dollars cash in bank. Now, while I was in France I secured a commission. My captain and I got along splendidly together. I got to know this man and to trust him and admire him. In civil life he'd been general manager of a large New York stock brokerage house. He had about fifty thousand dollars and he wanted to buy a seat on the New York Stock Exchange and go into business for himself. But he didn't have enough money to buy the seat and finance his operations.

"I told him I'd finance him—one hundred thousand dollars in cash against his fifty thousand in cash, his experience and ability, and we should be equal partners. We made money from the day we opened our doors."

"And you say you're not a financier."

"The lust for money has never overwhelmed me. I find, too, that I love Eden Valley. I'm going to close out my interests in New York and return here in the fall."

"I shall be very lonely while you are away, Nate."

"And that reminds me that I've sent down to San Francisco for a ring and here it is. If it's too big we'll have a tuck taken in, and if it's too small or you prefer some other stone I'll change it." And he slipped on her finger a square emerald worth at least a hundred steers. It was the first piece of jewelry she had ever owned and her hot tears of emotion baptized it; her warm lips caressed it in a silent promise he knew would never be broken.

"Suppose we get married in a hurry and make the New York trip a honeymoon," he said.

She shook her head. "Impossible until dad's estate has been settled. I can't leave here now. I have to work this outfit out of debt, because I can't afford a trousseau until I do However, dear, you run on to New York, complete your business there, and when you return we'll make those two mergers you spoke of. I'm too busy now. I've got a lot of those early calves still to brand and I'll have to brand about a thousand late calves in the fall. I don't want to leave any worries behind me when we go on our honeymoon."

"And we'll spend our summers in Eden Valley and our winters outside," he suggested.

She leaned against him a little wearily and held him tight but did not answer.

Somebody once remarked that nothing can be of surpassing interest for a period greater than nine days. For forty-eight hours following the unexpectedly painful and highly dramatic denouement of his plan to sway public opinion against Nate Tichenor and Lorry Kershaw, Silas Babson suffered acutely, not because he was sorry for what he had done but because the effect had been so wholly unexpected and pregnant of disaster to him. After having arranged to prevent the expose of the whole affair in court with probable penitentiary sentences for a couple of dozen hitherto respectable but mercurial citizens, he began to view life with a less jaundiced eye; and when, at the expiration of the proverbial nine days, he felt morally certain that "that Eden Valley gang," as he now referred to Nate, Lorry and Rube Tenney, was going to cling to its ancient tradition and have nothing whatsoever to do with legal reprisals, all of his old jauntiness and optimism returned.

He waited two weeks longer and when at the expiration of that period Henry Rookby, looking faintly reminiscent of a potato sprout put forth in a cellar, returned to his labors, Babson left the business of the bank in Mr. Rookby's hands and proceeded to motor forth among the Forlorn Valleyites and argue them into signing the petition to the county board of supervisors for permission to organize the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district. Having had a surveyor de-limit the areas susceptible to surface irrigation, he knew the identity of every farmer whose signature was necessary for his purpose, so a week's time sufficed to acquire the number of signatures legally necessary, and at the next regular meeting of the board of supervisors, of which Babson was a member, he presented the petition in person and addressed his colleagues at some length and with unusual eloquence on the desirability of favorable action by the board.

The chairman of the board rapped with his gavel. "The pros appear to have their innings," he announced smilingly. "Are there any cons to be heard from?"

A man rose in the rear of the hall, walked up to the railing in front of the dais upon which the board sat, and bowed first to the board and then to the audience. "Mr. Chairman—gentlemen: My name is John W. Gagan, a member of the San Francisco law firm of Brooks, Gagan and Brooks, and I appear as the legal representative of the three riparian owners along Eden Valley creek, to wit, Estate of Ranceford Kershaw, deceased, the Bar H Land and Cattle company, and the Mountain Valley Power company, the last two companies, as is generally known, being owned in their entirety by Mr. Nathan Tichenor. On behalf of my clients, I desire formally to protest to this honorable board against the formation of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district and will state my reasons briefly."

Gagan immediately proceeded to do so, painting to his auditors precisely the picture that Nate Tichenor had painted to him, challenging Lon Morton to gainsay one single legal statement. Gagan spoke simply, earnestly, arraying his facts in logical sequence.

When he had finished his address Gagan bowed to the board and started to leave the chamber. There was silence until he was half way down the aisle, then a storm of hisses and boos broke around him. Gagan looked back as he reached the door and saw that Silas Babson was on his feet, his hand raised for silence.

"So you're going to refute my statement, eh?" Gagan called back. "Well, before I depart I'll give you and your deluded followers some very good advice, free. The man who acts as his own attorney has a fool for a client."

Insects Take Huge Toll in Damage to Books, According to Some Librarians

Insects of various kinds take a yearly toll in book destruction that amounts to millions of dollars, says Scientific American. Perhaps the worst offenders in this respect are bookworms, the larvae and an insect known generally as the "drug store beetle," and scientifically as Sitodrepa panicea. It seems to have a particular fondness for practically everything, and thrives on arsenic, lead, pepper, and other poisonous and irritating substances.

Once this beetle lays its eggs in a library and the larvae begin feeding, librarians are likely to age overnight, for the larvae feed voraciously on all parts of books whether they be cheap modern editions or priceless ancient volumes. Many poisons have been used, by various methods of application, to defeat this foe of books. Thomas M. Iiams of the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery, San Marino, Calif., in the Library Quarterly, told of several infestations of the larvae in that library and the attempts to destroy them.

Acting on the advice of Dr. Tracy I. Storer of the University of California Agricultural college, hydrocyanic acid gas and several other powerful fumigants were used but with indifferent success. It was then decided to resort to vacuum fumigation. This would give perfect fumigation into every crevice of books, of which large numbers could be fumigated simultaneously. Also, this method would destroy the microscopic eggs of the beetle, as well as the larvae, by rupturing the thin membrane at one end of the egg and permitting entry of the poison gas.

The problem of an ideal fumigant was solved when Dr. Arnold O. Beckman of the California Institute of Technology, discovered that ethylene oxide and carbon dioxide could be combined in a liquid that is neither inflammable nor explosive.

AT THE CROSSROADS

California is facing a crisis, not only economic, but social and political.

August 28 is the cross roads for the people of this state. On that day we turn to Right or to the Left. Our choice has little to do with political parties. It has to do with a socialistic form of government which Upton Sinclair advocates, or the retention of our present governmental machinery with modifications to fit the changing times and changing needs of the Golden State.

Either we unite on a progressive and liberal candidate for governor and elect him or we pass to the leadership of a radical, whose ideals are as alien to the American people as those of Stalin, the Soviet autocrat.

There are five candidates in the race for Governor who command the attention of the people of this State. They are Governor Merriam of Long Beach, Quinn of Los Angeles, Creel of Washington D. C., New York, and latterly of California, and Upton Sinclair, Nobel prize winner, writer, theorist, whose home is wherever he hangs up his hat. Of late years he has hung it up in Pasadena. And last is Former Governor Young who lives in Palo Alto.

There are other candidates for Governor, some of them good men, but politically insignificant. They are not even strong enough politically to confuse the issue confronting California.

Note that three candidates come from south of the Tehachipi, two of them from the North. Sinclair, Merriam and Quinn are all from the South, Young and Creel are from the North.

Los Angeles seeths with radicalism, from pink socialism to deep red communism. The whole southern end of the State reeks with the smell of Soviet caviar. In the Great Valley are thousands of people who have lost everything and who are turning radical.

Sinclair in his contest will come North, August 28, with the nomination of his party. Democratic registrations in Southern California indicate a great majority affiliated with that party. Creel will carry the Democracy of the North, which even in this New Deal interim, is not strong.

On the Republican side, is Merriam, by a trick of fate, thrown into office to demonstrate his ability. Already he is doing it. Right and left the ax is falling. Good, bad and indifferent, Rolph officials are "resigning," and behind Merriam's chair stands the pudgy figure of Former Governor Richardson, who has just magnificently renounced his own gubernatorial aspirations.

The harvest fields of the Great Valley and the waterfronts of California ports are threatened with anarchy, but Merriam's first thought on entering office is to reward the faithful; his first gesture is to reach for the ax. Merriam is demonstrating. To be fair, there is not time enough between now and August 28, for Merriam to demonstrate anything but his incapacity.

In any event, Quinn, with the strength of his Legionnaire following will divide Republican votes south of the Tehachipi with Merriam.

In the North, Young is the strongest Republican candidate. Liberals and progressives, who fear Sinclair and his sans culottes, will rally to Young as the man who accumulated in the good years before the Depression a surplus of $31,000,000 in California's treasury, and kept it there after the Depression.

They know him as the man who gave California its most progressive, its sanest, most business like and most economical administration in the State's history.

Young succeeded Richardson and the Richardson family and kin as head of the State Government. He turned out all the sly looters and pensioners that sapped the State's treasury. He built up, with the aid of the legislature, a business administration for the direction of which his entire life had been a training.

In the very best sense of the phrase, he was governor of all of California. There were no pardons, no commutations, no sickly palavering over the fate of a murderer. Administrative and elective officers of the State admired and respected his sterling character and abilities, and worked with him.

Today Young stands as the only man in the gubernatorial contest of sufficient training, sound character, and administrative ability, to serve California and restore it to normal conditions.

A vote for Creel, Quinn or Merriam, in the last analysis, is a vote to turn this State over to Sinclair and his eager rampant radicals, who will do their best, by state appropriations, to establish a state socialism in which titles to private property will eventually be extinguished, and in which those who have will be forced to share whatever they have with those who have nothing.

It is possible that California, which has thus far been content to follow the leader of the New Deal, is now ready to take up Sinclair's Newest Deal.

But, do not be deceived, California's 6,000,000 people are about to make a choice. Those who do not believe we should abandon our democratic system of government, must resolve now to rally behind the strongest candidate opposing Sinclair. That candidate is C. C. Young.

California home owners can win this election if they will unite.

DR. STUART IN CONSTABLE RACE

Dr. U. H. Stuart, well known to his many friends all over Nevada county as "Doc" has shied his wide brimmed hat into the political ring as a candidate for constable of Nevada Township. A resident of Nevada county almost all of his life and of Nevada City for more than 30 years, Dr. Stuart needs no introduction to the people of Nevada Township.

He feels that he is capable of performing the duties of the office which he seeks, and that if elected he will perform those duties with faithful impartiality. He promises his friends in return for their support an efficient administration of the office.

It is with sincere regret that the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Stine see them depart. They have been entertained at several farewell dinners in the last few weeks.

Mrs. Stine is an accomplished musician and her beautiful whistling solos were always in great demand at

NORTH SAN JUAN

By MRS. F. M. HARRIS

NORTH SAN JUAN, May 31,—The schools of this part of the Ridge have closed within the last two weeks. The Sweetland school enjoyed a picnic on the last day which was attended by a large number of parents and friends as well as children. The teacher, Miss Reader, had four in the graduating class who received their diplomas.

They were: Eugene Reader, Rosie Yori, Edna Clark and Richard Sherrill.

The Birchville school with Mrs. Merriman as teacher, had no eighth grade this year.

Miss O'Connor, of French Corral, had a very nice program on the 22, followed by ice cream and cake and the afternoon was enjoyed by quite a crowd.

There were four graduates in the French Corral school. Audria Dahlberg, Rex Dahlberg, Mark Canch, and Harris Mathews.

The San Juan school closed the 23. Two pupils graduated: Ardith McQuin and Edna Uhreg. The teacher, Mr. Kast, took a motor trip through northern California and Oregon before returning to his home in San Jose. Mr. Kast will teach the Lime kiln school next year.

A little daughter, Kathleen, was born to Mr. and Mrs. George McQuinn on May 20th, at the Nevada City Sanitarium.

The residents of San Juan had quite a mad dog scare a week ago when a stray dog entered town from the east and bit several dogs and two little children: Nadine Ennis and Roy Stebbins. It continued on the highway through Nevada City and Grass Valley where it was killed and its head sent to the laboratory at the U. C., where it was discovered to have hydrophobia. The little children were taken to Dr. Jones who gave them daily treatments for two weeks.

Too many dogs are allowed to roam the country at will and are often a menace to poultry and stock if nothing more.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Perry and son De Marr, have established a camp among the oaks in Huckinsville. Mr. Perry was formerly interested in the Salmon mine but is now working at the San Juan mine.

Mr. Huckin's camp ground is well filled at the present time.

Miss Elizabeth Ferguson was hostess at a delightful luncheon which she gave at her pleasant home in Sebastopol, on May 24. The dainty colors of spring were predominating in the rooms and tables. Sweet peas were at the height of their beauty and shed their fragrance from numerous bouquets. The guests were Mrs. R. E. Harris, of Nevada City, sister of Miss Ferguson; Mrs. C. H. Jones and Mrs. W. R. Burnett, of Sweetland; the Misses Caroline and Annie Wienman, of Sebastopol; Miss Lena Dahneke and Mrs. F. M. Harris, of San Juan.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coombes and two small sons from Bloomfield visited Mr. Coombe's aunt, Miss Ferguson, on Decoration Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Stebbins and children have moved to a camp on Oregon Creek.

Two young people, from our town, graduated from the Nevada City high school this month. They were Norma Kessler and Murray Young.

Bilious Attacks

Twenty years from now it will be just as disgraceful to be bilious as it is now to be drunk. And it should be; a bilious attack in reality, is a food drunk. Biliousness is an intoxication or poisoning of the system due to overindulgence in food just as overindulgence in drink is bad, both morally and physically, possibly not to the same degree as overindulgence in drink.

A bilious attack is a process of elimination. It is a house cleaning, if you please, it is an occasion upon which the body get rids of poisons that have accumulated to the degree that they threaten health. The term bilious attack is applied by different persons to include a rather wide variety of more or less similar disturbances of various degrees of severity. But, to different persons these are similar characteristics and the symptoms vary largely only in the severity.

Those who are subject to bilious attacks of the severe variety usually notice that a day or two before the attack, there is some change in the bowels, usually more or less constipation, and gas in excess of the usual amount. Usually the day preceding the attack, the appetite is excessive, the person craves considerable food and foods that are not good for him. About this time he feels better than usual, has apparently more strength and vigor. The actual attack usually begins with a headache, over one eye, though often in the back of the head. As the headache becomes more severe, Nausea follows and the Nausea is often accompained by vomiting, first of the stomach contents, then of bile. The attack usually lasts for a few hours, but in some persons several days are required to clean-up the attack entirely. After a severe attack, the person usually feels weak and depressed for several days.

Between attacks, the victim of biliousness often is eating a little more food than his physical activities will permit him to use up and is usually eating foods that are hard to digest. He often uses coffee and tobacco, has the soda fountain habit. As a result of this sort of eating, the candidate for bilious attack keep up a constant fermentation and putrefaction of unused food in the bowels. The poisons that are formed here probably accumulate in the liver and when the time comes that they actually threaten health, they are destroyed by means of bilious attack.

Of course the real cure for biliousness must be accomplished by Chinese Herb treatments between the attacks. The diet must be changed in such a way as to stop the stream of poisons pouring into the liver from the stomach and intestines. Those who are afflicted with biliousness will find 3 meals a day pli much better than the usual 3 meals. Care should be taken, however, not to eat 3 meals at the 2 sittings. Milk and cream should be eaten sparingly, while sweets should be almost entirely omitted, and coffee avoid altogether. Meats should be eaten sparingly and care should be taken in regard to the combination of foods, as well as to their cooking. Bad cooking and bad mixtures have as much to do with bringing about bilious attacks as anything else.

PRINT FROCK THAT IS WORTHY PLACE IN ANY WARDROBE

PATTERN 1776

There's nothing like a print frock to suggest spring—to brighten up our wardrobe—and our spirits! We'd love the model sketched here in one of the colorful all-over designs so popular this season. It has truly flattering, feminine lines—the gracefully flared sleeves, the slim semi-belted waistline and length-giving skirt panel. With the neckline worn open, artificial flowers posed at the neckline add a chic note. For added interest, tiny buttons trim the back bodice. Sleeves may be omitted or may be made of contrast.

Pattern 1776 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 4 yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

News of the Week

Fresno State College recently graduated 170 students who had completed four years of higher education. It was one of the largest classes in the school's history.

Carrying more than 200 tropical animals, bird and snake specimens for the San Diego Zoo, Capt. Fred E. Lewis recently took his 172-foot yacht Stranger into San Diego port.

After a hotly contested trial which lasted for two days, the Westminster Gun club was convicted in Huntington Beach recently by a jury on a charge of wasting water. The gun club declared in its defense that due to the receding of water in its pond, grass had sprung up around the edges and that cattle had been put to pasture on the grass and more water pumped for use of the animals.

Officers of the state highway patrol report that in the two and one-half years the patrol has been inspecting school buses and examining bus operators no serious accidents have occurred as result of faulty equipment or negligent driving. In the two years the patrol has inspected about 1900 buses and issued certificates to 2567 drivers.

Sacramento, which has been leading the state in gain in bank debits during the last months, last week was ahead again with an increase over the same week of last year by 268.9 per cent, according to federal reserve figures tabulated by the state chamber of commerce. Stockton was next in the percentage of increase with Fresno, Bakersfield, Berkeley, and Oakland following.

R. C. Branion, state unemployment relief director, who appeared recently before the Santa Barbara county grand jury as a witness in investigation of an asserted $20,000 shortage in supplies of that county's relief commissary in 1932, when Branion was county relief director there, is reported to have scouted the idea that there is any real shortage.

Spraying crude oil or creosote in cracks and crevices is an invaluable procedure in efforts to control the so-called black widow spider, Dr. J. D. Dunshee, head of the state department of public health, has announced. He urged that precautions be taken against fire as the creosote is highly inflammable.

Two Whittier boys swam a mile through heavy surf from a water-logged boat and sumoned a Coast Guard craft which saved four men who were left drifting off the coast of southern California. The boys were William Jones, 16, and Elbert Thornburgh, 17.

Public utility and insurance company revenues slumped again in 1933 and cost the state $1,707,750 in gross receipts tax income. A 1934 assessment of $38,087,115, covering utility and insurance company gross receipts for 1933, has been announced by the state board of equalization. In 1933. the assessments were $34,794,866.

Hard times missed the short steam railroads and telegraph companies, which reported small revenue increases and barely gazed the gas and electric companies, which filed returns on business within 1 per cent of that for the preceding year.

Into the cells of San Quentin and Folsom penitentiaries, San Diego's nationally famous Women's Committee of 600 will dig in its search for light on criminal operations in San Diego county. Officers of the committee announced:

"We are looking for the higher-ups and expect to cut through all the red tape and safeguards they have provided for themselves. We have maintained strictest secrecy regarding the identity of our women workers and the fact that the criminals and criminal gangs have tried unsuccessfully to uncover us has lent us strength and the trust of the very men who have promised from their prison cells to help us."

Irrigation district officers express belief the awarding of the contract for construction of the All-American canal will be made in about 10 days, after checking of bids submitted by 17 contractors, it was announced in El Centro.

Several contractors filed bids for the construction of one or more of the seven work schedules, while two submitted bids for the entire job. The estimated cost of the All-American canal project, including Imperial dam, the desilting works, the main canal to Imperial Valley and the Coachella extension, leading 130 miles north from the main canal west of the sand hills and near the Mexican border and all the necessary structures, bridges, culverts and operating equipment, is about $38,000,000.

The State supreme court has issued an alternative writ of mandate ordering William Kerr, Los Angeles county registrar of voters, to show cause in Sacramento June 26 why the names of 26 candidates for superior judgeships should not be kept from the August primary ballot.

The writ was sought by Leslie S. Bowden, who contended all 26 had filed their candidacy on May 26 and that May 25 was legally the last day on which the superior judge candidates could file. The case will be submitted on briefs without oral argument

Farm & Ranch
California Agriculture

(By WNU Service)

Wheat markets in California are still being dominated by the strike and trading has been light. Prices have been steady because of the drought in the middle west.

Harvesting began during the last week in Sacramento valley but was interrupted by heavy showers. Early samples show rather disappointing quality with relatively heavy dockage but samples were too few to indicate general condition of the entire valley crop.

Industries and dealers were generally purchasing for immediate needs. Bay region wheat stocks on June 1 were reported as 15,284 tons as against 20,615 tons at the corresponding date last year and 9,685 tons two years ago.

President Roosevelt has been asked to aid the citrus growers of northern California in obtaining a federal loan to finance rehabilitation of groves in a telegram forwarded by the Oroville and Allied Communities chamber of commerce.

Marketings of rough rice in California have been negligible with growers not disposed to sell remaining supplies at current prices. Advances in other grains made for an increased holding tendency. Mills continued to bid 3 per cent or about 5 cents per 100 premium for all grades with prices holding unchanged from levels prevailing for several months past.

A continued brisk demand from Hawaii featured the San Francisco milled rice market with shipments during the last week amounting to over 25,000 bags, the heaviest for the current season with one exception. Shipments of rice from this country to the Hawaiian Islands during April, practically all from San Francisco, amounted to only 5,880,000 pounds and were the smallest for any month in several years.

San Diego is having 10,000 acres of land covered with grasshopper poison by SERA workmen. San Diego has been hard hit, R. R. McLean, agricultural commissioner, revealed. In many places the grasshoppers already have caused great damage to crops.

Black Mission figs are rolling to eastern markets. The first car left Exeter recently for New York. The figs harvested from the Goodale orchard southwest of Exeter were the first to be shipped. While the crop is light, quality of the fruit is excellent.

California bean markets, according to the federal-state market news service, developed a slightly firmer tone during the last week with prices on the principal classes at the close of the period mostly unchanged to 5 cents per 100 higher than a week earlier.

Influences making for firmness included a slight improvement in demand, continued light offerings from growers and price advances in other bean producing areas.

California orange growers as a whole are now reaping in full measure the benefits of the regulation of shipments under the marketing agreement, according to state department of agriculture officials. Prices on eastern markets are higher than they have been at any time in years and returns to California producers are rolling in at the rate of about $2,000,000 weekly, on the basis of present prices, according to State Director of Agriculture A. A. Brock.

While the drought situation in California is serious it is not alarming at present, according to a report of E. E. Kaufman, agricultural statistician in charge of the federal-state crop reporting service, state department of agriculture.

As part of a nationwide survey ordered by the U. S. department of agriculture on drought conditions in various states, Kaufman wrote concerning California:

Shortage of water for irrigation will produce short hay and forage crops, but no great shortage of feed grains is indicated except for grain sorghums. The probable shortage of water for stock in foothill and mountain ranges is the most serious situation at the present time.

With advancing hay prices, the livestock industry is in a difficult position. Pasture and range feed is fair to good in most counties north of an east to the west line through Madera but is deteriorating rapidly in the foothills and mountains and is already matured up to the 4,000-foot level.

South of that line, feed in most places is very short with failure in spots. The stock water shortage is getting acute and soon will embrace practically all of the foothill, coast and Sierra ranges except the north coast, thus restricting range utilization.

Stock is in good condition except in limited dry sections, but will show a lower condition each month until late fall.

In recognition of the wine industry of California, a display of the finest wines produced in this state is on view in the exhibit window of the California state chamber of commerce, Ferry building, San Francisco. Charts show that California produces practically 90 per cent of the wines in the United States and that prior to prohibition our annual production had reached 48,000,000 gallons and that the first year following repeal of prohibition that we produced 40,000,000 with more acres being planted to grapes and many wineries being built.

Dishes That "Go" Together

Variety of Combinations Apparently Are Just Meant to Complement; May Be Said to "Flatter" Each Other When So Served.

To enjoy the edible good things of life is one of the prerogatives of the epicure. What comprises these good things depends upon the taste of the person or of the family, and preferences. The real epicure is the person whose taste has had a high degree of education in foods. He knows how to discriminate in edibles, both as to quality and to combinations. I well remember hearing a Chinese gentleman of discernment say of one vegetable that "it flatters the meat." The homemaker who sets a good table learns what to serve so that one dish may "flatter" another. Let us mention, today, some dishes which "flatter" each other.

Cranberry sauce flatters chicken, caper sauce does the same to mutton, and apple sauce does to roast pork, duck and goose. Cabbage flatters boiled corn beef, baked macaroni and cheese do the same to roast beef, and in England Yorkshire pudding is the accepted accompaniment to beef. In Europe a salad is correct with chicken, goose, and other roast birds.

To Europeans a salad signifies dressed lettuce or other salad greens with, possibly, the addition of a little chopped beet root or tomato slices. Other salads they have, but these have especial descriptive designations. Salad, as an accompaniment to flatter roast birds, is plain unless otherwise specified. The salad is served with the birds as naturally and regularly as are potatoes or other vegetables.

Turnip is a recognized accompaniment of corned beef. It is also excellent with lamb. Sweet potatoes are preferable to white with ham. Pineapple flatters ham. In India ripe pineapple slices are put on top of a slice of ham which is then baked, or cooked in a similar way. The juice extracted by the heat percolates through the meat, giving it a delicious flavor. Ham so cooked is reputed to be especially digestible.

Whipped cream flatters many desserts which are complete without this dainty addition. It goes with cold desserts especially, even topping some ice creams. Meringue belongs in the same class with whipped cream. It can be used interchangeably in many instances, although since it is more tasty when delicately browned; it belongs peculiarly to baked and even hot dishes. When on frozen desserts a hot iron is held above the piled meringue so that it, alone, gets the force of the intense heat. Ices with browned meringue tops are epicurean dishes.

A food which flatters another must be something apart from the dish itself. That is, it may be a separate food served as a complement to it, or it may be an addition to a dish itself which, however, could be served without it.

Airplane Statistics

The United States leads the world in the number of private airplanes. Last year there were more than 1,200 machines in the country. France had 1,387, but this included many used for instruction and owned by clubs. France has the largest number of commercial planes, according to population, one to every 100,000 inhabitants. The United States has one for 500,000, Italy one for every 400,000, and Germany one for every 150,000.

Hatch Pheasant Chicks by Artificial Methods

The state of Pennsylvania, which probably turns out more pheasants than any other state, discarded its hen-hatching system last spring and made a complete change over to artificial hatching and rearing, with the result that out of 27,263 eggs set 20,164 chicks were hatched and 16,660 pheasants were raised. Chicks are hatched in electrically heated machines at 103 degrees and after hatching are kept in the incubator hatcher compartment at 100 degrees for 24 hours.

They are then transferred to the brooder house under hover at 98 degrees. The second week they are given access to a sun porch. The third week they are given access to a ground runway and the hover temperature is reduced gradually until by the fifth week the artificial heat is turned off completely. The sixth and seventh week the chicks are transferred to a holding field and are released during the eighth to the tenth weeks.

CHOOSE THE TIRE CHAMPIONS BUY
Firestone
Tires have been on the winning cars in the gruelling Indianapolis 500-Mile Race FOR 15 CONSECUTIVE YEARS

EVERY winner in the 500-Mile Indianapolis Race—the most gruelling tire test in the world—drove to victory on Firestone High Speed Tires.

Race drivers know that heat generated by friction inside the cotton cords is the greatest enemy of tire life. These men will not risk their lives on any but Firestone Tires, because they know the high stretch cords in every Firestone Tire are protected by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping.

Gum-Dipping soaks the high stretch cords in liquid rubber and saturates and coats the millions of fibers inside the cords, counteracting destructive friction and heat. It provides greater adhesion between the plies of the tire, and between the Gum-Dipped cord body and the tread.

Firestone chemists and engineers kept pace with new car developments by building stronger, safer tires to meet the exacting demands. See your Firestone Dealer or Service Store today and equip your car with new Firestone High Speed Tires for 1934, with deeper, thicker, flatter, and wider non-skid tread, more and tougher rubber, more traction, giving you more than 50% longer non-skid mileage.

Remember, in Firestone High Speed Tires there is Greater Strength—Greater Safety—and Greater Blowout Protection than in any tire made.

THE ADHESION TEST

Note how the rubber in a Firestone Tire clings to the high stretch Gum-Dipped cords. This greater adhesion and strength is made possible by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping.

Note how the rubber in an ordinary tire pulls away from the cords that have not been soaked and insulated with rubber. This causes friction and heat within the cords, resulting in separation.

GRAND OLD MAN OF PLACER COUNTY PASSES

Ellis Franklin, "The Grand Old Man of Placer County" passed away at his country home a few miles south of Colfax on Saturday, June 9th. Ellis Franklin was 85 years old at the time of his death and for many years was known and loved by thousands of Placerites and Northern Californians. He was born in England but came to California more than 65 years ago, and has always been very public spirited. In 1914 he was appointed by Governor Johnston to serve as state director of the State Agricultural Board and was given as his particular sphere, the Education Department. In the 20 ears in which he served on the board he built up his department from a small unit to one of the most important and most successful of the many features of the State Fair.

BASEBALL AT SAN JUAN

NORTH SAN JUAN, June 12.—The San Juan base ball team had a Cherry Carnival on June 2 and 3.

It opened with a dance on Saturday night which was attended by a large crowd who seemed to enjoy the excellent music.

The boys were very generous with their supply of cherries, boxes of them standing where all could help themselves freely. The ball game was played Sunday with Brown's Valley and was won by the San Juan team. A race for men and one for women and a pie eating contest were the attractions following the game. A greased pole with a dollar on the top, tempted several to try to scale its slippery height but none succeeded in getting to the top.

Many visitors were present at the carnival. Among them were: Billy McCullough, of Antioch; Jean McCullough and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Callanan from Berkeley; Mr. and Mrs. Warren Odell, of Nevada City; Mrs. Rose Pignalia and sons Larry and Babe, and daughters, Edith, Irma and Clara from Sacramento. The other guests from Sacramento were Judy Geach, Grace Geach, Joe Zorn, Kenneth Mackey, Myrtle Bell, Ralph Young, Jack Chedester and Emma Hansen. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Chatfield and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Williams of Pike were also present.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PUPILS ENJOY ICE CREAM CONES

Sunday was a red letter day with the children of Trinity Episcopal church school. First Bishop Porter's award of 99 tickets for ice cream cones, was made and then Myers Mobley was present and took a picture of the entire school. There were 89 children present yesterday with the teachers.

Next Sunday, June 24, will be the final church school session previous to the summer vacation of July and August. The past quarters contest shows the following entitled to win awards for their perfect attendance which will be given out on next Sunday. Those not tardy are Ainsley Fouyer, Lucille Danos, Catherine Davis, Billy Gracey, Bob James, Betty Smith, Edward Jacobs, Desiree Lucas, Richard Anderson, Leland Smith, Joyce Deal, Jean Anderson, Dorothy Truscott, and Jackie Deal. Marylin and Neta Anderson started attending after the contest opened, but have never missed a Sunday since starting.

Mrs. Jack Reynolds, of Hollywood, was a recent visitor in the home of her brother, H. B. Towsley, in Nevada City.

IT'S NEW
THE FARM "25"
25 CUBIC FEET—ABOUT THREE TIMES MORE CAPACITY PER DOLLAR INVESTMENT THAN DOMESTIC TYPE REFRIGERATORS

A New Farm Refrigerator

MORE ADAPTABLE THAN EVER TO THE NEEDS OF THE AVERAGE FARM

IT PAYS FOR ITSELF—this proven fact about electric refrigeration has sold it to millions of thrifty housewives. But if it is true of domestic models which only save, how much more true it is of these Farm Refrigerators which earn, as well.

For the average farm there is the new Farm "25"—an economical size to operate, yet plenty big enough for marketable produce as well as food for the family table. This model, and larger ones up to 125 cubic foot capacity are being offered by several manufacturers at astonishingly low prices.

For the farmer who is handy with tools—and what farmer isn't!—we can supply University of California specifications for 35, 40, 80 and 125 cubic foot refrigerators.

Make no mistake, a Farm Refrigerator today is an investment. It not only pays for itself, through usage, but it pays extra dividends in better health, leisure time and more wholesome, appetizing meals.

Don't go through another summer watching food spoilage cut into your profits. End this waste, once and for all, with an electric Farm Refrigerator. Either buy it or built it, but do it now. See our local office for additional information. Easy terms can be arranged, of course.
